

OUR MARY'S WEDDING DAY.

Miss Anderson Tells "The World" About Her Approaching Marriage.

An interesting interview with the charming actress in London.

The day is fast approaching on which Mary Anderson, "Our Mary," is to become Mrs. Antonio De Navarro. The wedding will be a private affair, simple in its style and with no witnesses save the immediate family.

Even the father of the lucky Tony De Navarro, Jose De Navarro, of this city, will not be present. At his office, 71 Broadway, he is informed an EREXIMO World reporter, Young Navarro, fell in love with the soprano actress while she was playing in the city. There sprang up a close friendship between the two families, and Antonio was quickly reconciled as Miss Anderson's accepted suitor.

He was even permitted to criticize her work in rehearsal, and his suggestions were religiously followed by "Our Mary." When Miss Anderson left for Europe a year ago young Antonio was speedily seized with an illness that imperatively required a change of scene, and his mamma accompanied him to Europe. He has prospered so well in the sunshine of his inamorata's eyes that he is now almost stout.

ANTONIO DE NAVARRO. The second son of Jose De Navarro, he was born in 25 Washington Place, New York. He is a very handsome young man, and has resided there ever since. He was educated at home, and when twenty years old entered Columbia College, graduating with honors and the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

He was admitted to the bar in 1884 and was then taken into the firm and practiced law up to the time of his departure for Europe with his mother last June. He is a tall, slim, well-built young man and has the dark complexion, hair and eyes peculiar to the Spaniard. He is handsome and a very capable young man. A Washington correspondent followed him to his London residence of "Our Mary's" father, Dr. Griffin, and he was interviewed by Miss Anderson, in which the expectant bridegroom and Dr. Griffin participated.

When Dr. Griffin came to the bell, Miss Anderson herself opened the door, and very nearly upsetting a good-looking young man dressed in a suit of dark cloth, who stood behind her.

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Tony," she said; "I did not know you were here."

"I am here," he replied, "and I am all right," was the reply.

"Dr. Griffin at home?" The World asked. "He is here," she replied, "and he is very well."

"He is really very well," she said, "and he is very well."

"He is really very well," she said, "and he is very well."

HER MISSION WAS VENGEANCE

The Motive of the Opium Fiend's Beautiful Nemesis.

Both Her Father and Brother Had Died from the Drug.

Fear of being harmed by the friends of the opium king keepers whom she had informed on and presented in Jefferson Market Police Court has driven Miss Radcliffe from the place where she was boarding, 142 West Thirty-third street.

She has been harbored by that fear ever since the first gave information against Mr. Birch, who had a joint in the same house.

The stairways are dark and gloomy, and several times the girl has been startled and threatened by friends of the Blue Room.

She has disappeared as mysteriously as she came. No one knows where she has gone, save perhaps Detective McConnell, and a claim could hold a candle to him for keeping his mouth shut regarding the girl.

Evidently Miss Radcliffe has a history. She refuses to say what she is, and where she came from, but when asked if the opium king keepers have wronged her, her expressive mouth becomes hard and firm as she replies: "They have!"

An EREXIMO World reporter travelled through the Tenderloin Precinct this morning to learn what he could of this evening's girl.

She first appeared in the Tenderloin Precinct at 142 West Thirty-third street, where she was boarded with her father and brother.

Next she went to board with Mr. Birch, at 142 West Thirty-third street, and then to Mrs. Winlow's, in the same house.

No one at any of the above places can say what she is, and where she came from, but when asked if the opium king keepers have wronged her, her expressive mouth becomes hard and firm as she replies: "They have!"

She was playing in Grunty's Theatre, 142 West Thirty-third street, when she learned of her father's death in a den in 142 West Thirty-third street.

It was a commonplace way and over a road that another girl of her name had been living with her father in Washington.

CENSUS WORK NEARLY DONE.

New Yorkers Will Not All Be Counted Before Wednesday.

Population of the County Will Be Known by July 1.

According to the Census law, the gathering of the statistics of the people of this big town should be completed to-morrow.

The work is general, and the census takers have been working for several days.

"The tenth census," said he, "was taken in 1880, and on the expiration of the special first time the Supervisor in this city found that the big job will be completed to-morrow."

CHEYENNE REIGN OF TERROR.

Rascally Redskins Still Out and on the Warpath.

Minuta May Be Called to Aid the Government Troops.

Special to THE EVENING WORLD. Cheyenne, Mon., June 14.—Every mountain peak and hillside in the Cheyenne country was a signal station last night, blazing with the fires lighted by Northern Cheyennes.

Advices received yesterday by couriers from the scene of threatened trouble are of a startling nature. With the exception of Chief Two Moons' band, which has been driven back upon the reservation by the cavalry from Fort Custer and Keogh, the hostiles are now practically upon the warpath.

The ruthless slaughter of cattle shows no sign of abatement. Twenty head were shot yesterday near Silver Creek by a band of bucks under sub-Chief Eagle Feather, and a cowboy named Spencer was fired upon as he took safety in flight.

Ninety odd Indians armed with Winchester and having plenty of ammunition are prowling in the vicinity of Ashland, whither troops have been sent to round them up.

A settler named George Kaufman abandoned his ranch at Tongue River, and with his wife and one child started for this place. Scarcely had he left his cabin when he was fired upon by a band of Cheyennes, and he was killed.

Great uneasiness is felt for the safety of Major Atkinson at Tongue River. A private to the army has been sent to the place to see if he is safe.

The army of the law is invoked by the Cheyenne people, and a concern which has been sent to the place to see if he is safe.

IT MAY BREAK THE ICE TRUST.

Maine Men's Stacks Mean Plenty of Cheaper Ice.

A Glut in the New York Market Sends Ring Prices Tumbling.

Phonol any irrelevant small boy chant "Down Went McGilly to the Bottom of the Hole" in the hearing of one of New York's haughty ice barons to-day, he would have to hasten to avoid getting his ears boxed.

The ice Trust has received a heavy blow, and every housewife on Manhattan Island would gleefully turn thumbs down at its ultimate fate were submitted to their suffrage.

A glut of the frozen cubes has taken the place of the carefully nurtured scarcity in the local market, and prices have gone down with celerity.

Two canoes have combined to break the back of the ice monopoly. In the first place the plea of scarcity at the sources of supply has been proven false, and the thirty harvesters on the banks of the Penobscot, the Piscataquis and the Passamaquoddy have cut the literal "stacks" of ice which they had accumulated during the last two or three winters in steady strokes of their barren-coast-tail axes.

"Identical arrivals by schooner loads yesterday, coupled with the intelligence that scores of ice-laden barges in tow of powerful down East tug were on the way, enabled dealers to buy on the whole at a rate of 10 cents per 100 pounds which the day before cost but a little more than 10 cents.

The schooner Mosee Licker lay at the foot of West street offering ice in any quantity at 40 cents per hundred to anybody with coin to pay for it.

At no point of the city was a higher price than 10 cents demanded.

President Knickerbocker, the Knickerbocker Ice Company, when approached by a reporter said:

"It is no longer a question of ice, but of transportation. I believe there is plenty of ice in the country to supply all demands if it can only be gotten to the market."

The other particularly sharp thorn in the side of the Trust is the demonstrated feasibility of bringing artificial ice into successful competition with the natural product.

As yet no plant of importance has been established to manufacture ice for public consumption, but many large individual consumers are making all they want for themselves, at a cost entirely satisfactory to them, and by so much lessening the output of the big company the ice Trust is preserving peace.

Should any injury be done to Agent Uppshaw by the city and counties dock at the foot of East Fifty-third street, the company will certainly be called out.

As long as Major Carroll keeps troops at the foot of East Fifty-third street, the company will certainly be called out.

BARGE OFFICE'S FIRST BORN.

The Arrival of Mr. Pat Purcell, Jr., at the Landing Bureau.

He Weighs Seven Pounds and Gives Seven Tons of Joy.

Mr. Pat Purcell, Jr., received an EREXIMO World reporter in his dressing gown this morning.

Mr. Pat Purcell enjoys the distinction of being the first born of the Barge Office Immigrant Landing Bureau.

He is a fat and rosy little chap, tipping the beam at seven pounds, but bestowing upon Pat Purcell, Sr., seven tons of joy.

Pat senior and his wife, Ellie Purcell, arrived from Old Ireland yesterday, and Pat junior met in an appearance an hour afterwards at the hospital, Dr. Houghton officiating.

The young man expressed himself as being extremely proud of his achievement, for he was not expected in seven weeks.

He might have been an American, a Welshman or a Scot, but he is an American!

And both Pat and Ellie think they have made an excellent beginning in America.

Pat, Jr., neglected to bring his war trophy with him, and good Mother Eleanor, of the Hospital, was busy stitching up a couple of very little shirts when the reporter called, while the young immigrant from the Land of Nowhere cuddled beside his pretty mother.

Mr. Purcell, Sr., said that his wife, Ellie, was a very good girl, and that she was a very good girl.
